- This is not a toy. Use only under adult supervision.
- Check product condition regularly, replace if product shows signs of damage.
- Never use this product to cover your baby's head or face.
- Swaddle should be snug – do not forcefully stretch.
- Swaddle counts as a layer of clothing. Ensure baby is at a comfortable temperature.
- When baby shows signs of trying to roll over, it's time to stop swaddling, or swaddle them so their arms are free.

Instructions:

Lie the wrap flat so it forms a diamond shape, then fold the top corner down.

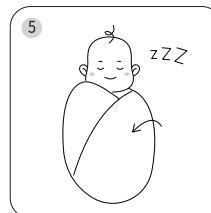

Lie your baby on the cloth so their head is free, and shoulders are just below the fold.

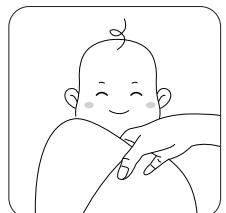

Position your baby's arm by their side. Take the corner of the cloth on that side and wrap snugly across their chest, tucking the end smoothly behind their back.

Fold the bottom corner up over baby's feet, ensuring they can still kick and bend their legs. The swaddle should be looser around the hips to allow movement. Tuck the corner under the shoulder wrap you secured in step 3 so there is no loose cloth.

Position your baby's free arm next to their body, then pull the remaining corner snugly across their chest. Pull the excess fabric and tuck under your baby so their weight holds it in place.

NOTE: The swaddle should be tucked so it is nice and snug but not too tight - you should be able to place three fingers between your baby's chest and the swaddle. Make sure there is no loose fabric near your baby's face.
